

I think that Sinclair Broadcasting's recent decision requiring their stations to broadcast what is clearly an anti-Kerry documentary right before the election is both dangerous to our democracy and a good example of why media consolidation does not serve the public interest. This kind of action is why we need to strengthen media ownership rules. When large companies rule the airways we get more attention to boosting profits than what is good for our democracy.